I am 69y.o. GP in solo practice for 28 yrs, but graduated [REDACTED]. My practice is not computerised. I am very busy looking after my patients, most of whom are middle aged or elderly. Any doctor cannot be good at everything. I go to meetings where I expect to learn relevant information to help my patients. I measure my success with each patient according to their wellbeing and my investigations. I don't need a computer to do this. I am very cautious and aspire to high standards. I "self-reflect" all the time and there is no way that I can show you that. As for the outcomes, my patients are very loyal and grateful. I love practising medicine but one thing that will drive me out is bureaucratic bullshit invented by people not at the frontline, with nothing better to do. I am aware that older solo GP's like myself are being targetted. Have you received any complaints about me?
